INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

About seven years ago, I brought out the first of a series of volumes giving a descriptive catalogue of the official Records of the Government of the Sikhs. It dealt with the records concerning the administration of the Military Department of the Khalsa government. The present volume, which is a continuation of the work, relates to the Revenue, Jagir and the Toshakhana departments of the Khalsa Darbar.

The arrangement followed in this volume is similar to that adopted in volume I. The book has been divided into three parts, viz., Part I relating to the Revenue rolls, Part II relating to the Jagir accounts, and Part III relating to the papers of the Toshakhana Department. Each part contains a summary catalogue of the various bundles of papers grouped under a particular head. As in the previous volume I have prefaced each part with a short note giving the outstanding features of the particular department with which it is concerned.

PART I.

MĀLIYĀT.

THE papers arranged and included in Part I of this volume are technically known as daftar-i-māl. The word māl* (plural māliqāt) simply means revenues and daftar-i-māl would, therefore, denote the Revenue Department. But as the English equivalent is not likely to convey the exact sense or the full scope of the nature of the papers grouped under the above head, it has been thought proper to retain the original vernacular term daftar-i-māl, or, briefly, māliqāt to denote this part of the volume. The practice of the Sikh government, as was explained in the previous volume (page 1, volume I), was to collect the records of the various branches of administration for one official year and arrange them in the form of a bundle. This final sorting and arranging of papers was done in the office of the Diwān who was also responsible for their safe custody. And since the Diwān was usually in charge of the māl, or revenues of the State, the records preserved under his supervision came to be known as daftar-i-māl.

It is known on fairly good authority that before Diwān Amardās, Bhawānī Dās joined his service in 1809, Ranjit Singh had neither an organized treasury, nor was there a proper system of keeping official records.† The Diwān was the first to organize the offices. Presumably he introduced the system of the Kashmir government with which he had long been associated. In the absence, however, of any authentic narrative account, it is very difficult to give an accurate sketch of the administrative system introduced by the Diwān. But a close study of the papers dealing with the ministerial details and belonging to the office of the Diwān reveals certain facts, which go a long way in enabling us to construct a brief outline of the departments or *daftar*s into which Bhawānī Dās divided the business of the State.‡

Since the official records were kept in loose sheets instead of in bound books or tagged files, and since there was danger of

* In India the term wādī was used for the public revenue from any source whatsoever, but more especially for that derived from land, to which sense as a fiscal term it is now restricted, or the revenue claimed by the Government from the produce of cultivated lands. (Wilson's Glossary of Indian Terms, page 322).

† See page 185, volume I, Catalogue of the Khalsa Dabtar Records.
‡ The Diwān himself, his father and grandfather, held the very important post of Amardās or revenue minister under the Kashmir government—(vide Orbits and Families of Nobs in the Punjab, page 376-77).

§ In his book 'The Sikhs and the Afghans' Shahamat Ali mentions that Bhawānī Dās divided the transaction of the State into twelve *daftar*s, but he gives no further details.

the constituent papers of a file being lost or misplaced, the original founders of the system (probably the Persians) also devised means of providing against such risk. The papers belonging to different daftras or departments had different heads or titles scribbled at the top. And these heads indicated both the general nature of a paper as well as the particular branch of the department to which it belonged or a particular series or file with which it was to be arranged in the records.*

According to these titles or superscriptions, the papers of the earlier years, as a rule, fall under three main heads which correspond to the following chief departments, namely:—

- (1) awārcha.
- (2) tauzhidat†
- (3) roznamcha.

The awārcha or awārīya is an abstract account of receipts and disbursements (Wilson's Glossary of Indian terms, page 40). As such the awārcha group comprises sheets of papers of what may be called the account books in the real sense of the word. They are divided into mawfada, manzakh and baqr or credit, debit and balance, or the usual sub-divisions of a statement of accounts.

The tauzhidat from tauzih (literally explaining, adjustment of accounts. Wilson, page 514) is a head of account. The tauzih papers do not show the credit, debit and balance as are found in the awārcha papers. They contain only the disbursed items appropriated to various heads of expenditure. Each head or sub-head has a separate ledger devoted to it.

The third group or the roznamcha is only a day book of disbursements whether in cash or in cheques.

These main divisions have their further sub-divisions which may be given in the following tabular form:—

- (1) The awārcha papers are sub-divided into—
  - (a) awārcha sarf-i-samā.
  - (i) arbab-ul-māl.
  - (ii) arbab-ul-tahsil.
  - (b) awārcha sarf-i-samā.

*The titles indicating the main department and its sub-divisions are written in successive lines one above the other and are scribbled in elongated shikasta which is not easy to decipher without considerable practice. At first sight, these scribbles appear to be nothing more than mere lines at the top of a paper designed only for ornamentation. This is sometimes written as tauzhidat-muqarraridat.

- (2) tauzhidat-o-muqarraridat—
  - (i) al-khidat.
  - (ii) maudiyib.
  - (iii) muqarraridat.
  - (3) roznamcha.

The arbab-ul-māl dealt with the accounts of revenue receipts from different sources and may be translated as Revenue and Exchequer Departments. This department was further sub-divided into two, namely, jam'kharch ta'aluqat and jam'kharch sarfat. The ta'aluqat section dealt with receipts derived exclusively from land, while the sarfat comprised entries referring to customs, tributes and other minor sources.

The arbab-ul-tahsil appears to have been a department by itself. It seems difficult to find an exact English equivalent for the term. It was concerned with the jam' and kharch, or debits and credits, entered on account of the following sub-heads, viz., (i) bayutdat, (ii) ahlikar or sometimes simply tahwidat and (iii) zakhiridat.

The bayutdat (from bayut plural of bait, meaning house) may be rendered into Imperial Household Accounts. The details with the officer in charge of the accounts of cash and furniture deposited in the royal stables, the toshakhana, the kitchen, the furniture and the necessary paraphernalia of infantry and artillery.

The tahwidat is literally a cash-keeper, but in a wider sense it denoted any person with whom the government money was deposited, or any fund for which it was deposited. The term ahlikar or more correctly ahl-i-kar, means a man of business or an officer of a court. The tahsil accounts may, therefore, with some accuracy be termed as the accounts of Government funds. This head comprises the accounts of multifarious natures such as the accounts of the central treasury, of the paymasters of the army, of purchases, of buildings, of cloth merchants and of jewellers, etc.

The zakhiridat papers comprise the accounts of the stores and provisions for military purposes stored in various forts in the empire.

Awārcha sarf-i-samā.—Strictly speaking these papers belong to the Exchequer and the Revenue Departments. They deal with receipts from minor sources of revenue such as zabât (eschuats), reshkash (presents), etc. It is from the nature of their sources that these receipts were probably classed as sunu or second, or minor, to distinguish them from the awwal or first, principal or major head which comprised more regular and permanent sources such as land, tributes, etc., detailed under the head arbab-ul-mal is lawjihāt-o-muqarrar-yat.

So far about the awāchā papers or accounts proper. Then we have the departments whose duty it was to post the accounts and distribute the items under their appropriate heads of expenditure. The collective name of these departments is lawjihāt-o-muqarrar-yat.

Taujīdāt.—This head is subdivided into two main and several subordinate heads. The two main heads, it seems, constituted two important departments of the Government. One was known as dāftar-i-akhrājāt and the other as dāftar-i-mawājib. The akhrājāt literally means expenditure. It comprises the expenses incurred under the following heads:—

- (1) inām (rewards, gifts).
- (2) ibāyāt or ibādāt (from baī, purchase).
- (3) istābil (stable).
- (4) isṭimāl (employment, use, the goods or material consumed in building or manufacture).
- (5) ta'mīn (buildings, etc.).
- (6) hādīf (presents).
- (7) khilā'at (robes of honour).
- (8) khawāsh fāl (feed of elephants).
- (9) dharmārth (charity).
- (10) ziyāfat (entertainment).
- (11) langar khāss (royal kitchen).
- (12) lā'ingā shēr (feed of lions).
- (13) mākūla sagān (feed of hounds).
- (14) idgīrāt (grants of land).
- (15) muṣā'idāt (advances of money).
- (16) hīrdgā (fare of hired camels and carts, etc.).
- (17) madād khārāch (aids and advances, etc.).

The other main department under taujīdāt is known as dāftar-i-mawājib or pay office. The word means salaries of pensions. The papers arranged under this head are the pay rolls of the army and of the civil establishment or (amla). Each branch of the army and of the civil establishment had their separate ledgers and the papers under each sub-head will be found to have been arranged in separate groups in the following pages of the catalogue.

The last group of papers constitutes the roznamcha. This dāftar was responsible for keeping account of the daily income and expenditure. The roznamcha items were subsequently transferred to other books and posted under their appropriate heads.

From what has been said above, it seems that the chief dāftar's created by Diwān Bhawāni Dās were—

- (1) Arbab-ul-mal (the Revenue Department with its two branches, sarf-i-awwal and sarf-i-sūni, dealing with income, i.e., from land and minor sources).
- (2) Arbab-ul-takwīl (with its three branches of Imperial household (baywālāt), Government funds (lahwīlāt) and stores, etc. (zakhrājāt)).
- (3) Taujīdāt with its two subdivisions of the Imperial household expenditure (akhrājāt) and the pay department (mawājib).
- (4) Roznamcha.

For want of authentic information on the point, it is not possible to say with any approach to certainty if the system of accounts introduced by Bhawāni Dās was exactly the same as that which was in force in the Government of Kābul, or if it was a modification of the original type to suit the political conditions of the province. But for a simple government like that of the Sikhs the system introduced by Bhawāni Dās appears fairly elaborate and Ranjit Singh deserves credit for the reform, the more so when we take into consideration the fact that Ranjit Singh in 1809 was not yet secure in his position, and that the Sikh nation was being dragged into monarchy by his most powerful officers and chiefs. Another consideration that one has to keep in view in giving credit to Ranjit Singh for this attempt at an orderly government is, that it was after nearly fifty years of an absence of any regular government in the province that he introduced or re-established a departmental organization. With the death of the Emperor Aurangzeb, the Moghal administration in general had become disorganised, especially in the outlying provinces of the empire. Between the years 1738 and 1768, the greater part of the country lying to the west of Delhi was wrested piece-meal from his feeble successors by Nadir Shah and Ahmad Shah, the monarchs of Kábul. But for several reasons the new masters of the province, nor could they enforce any vigorous control over the province, nor could they had supplanted the system of government in place of the one they had supplanted. The country was situated at a considerable distance from the capital and their hold on their representatives in the province was, necessarily, very weak. The result was a general anarchy and a complete breakdown of the administrative machinery. The rising Khalisa, who now profited by these disorders and had become a sovereign power in the country, were composed of the rude, untutored peasants and were incapable of conceiving an orderly arrangements of administration. Their chief concern was the appropriation of the revenues of the land and applying them for the maintenance of their army and other military equipments.

The papers of earlier years have certain peculiarities which are not noticed in the records of the latter years of Ranjit Singh's government. In the first place, the dates used on the top of the papers are in Turkish calendar months and years, such as qur'z, tal'ha qur'z, etc., although in the main body of a paper the dates are represented in Hindi months of the Bikrami era. The second interesting feature of these papers is the use of elongated form of Persian letters to denote the heads or titles referred to in the footnote on page 2. They have no points or dots to represent the nuktas and appear at the outset as meaningless words.

In the records of the Sambat year 1872 (1816 A.D.), we notice a sudden change both in the manner of keeping accounts and the preparation of official records. The practice of using the Turkish dates gives place to the use of Indian chronological terms as fasl-i-kharif and fasl-i-rabi. The elongated forms previously employed in scribbling out the heads or titles is also dropped, and the simpler and more easily readable forms (though not exactly nasta'liq) are adopted in their stead.

In the same year, i.e. Sambat 1872, with the changes noted above, we find more important changes in the departmental organization. The old division of major and minor head of accounts (sarf-i-awwal and sarf-i-sani) is abandoned. The Exchequer Department is organized on a different basis. The sources of income other than land are now consolidated under one general head of shahd with its sub-sections of custom (shahd), excise, etc. (vajvahd) and tributes (narar'ana). These together form a sub-department of the Exchequer.

Besides the above, there were other minor changes, all designed to introduce greater simplicity and definiteness into the system of records.

The result of this general reorganization of the departments was the adoption of a new series of papers for the annual official records. Under the old system, we had three sets of papers, namely awarcha, kayidat and roznam'ina. The awarcha papers, as already pointed out in these pages, were concerned with the debit and credit accounts, whether of receipts or expenditure. In the new system this term is restricted in meaning, and in its place we have the simpler Hindustani term jam' kharch used to denote the debit and credit accounts. The term awarcha on the other hand is employed to denote the new series of papers referred to above. These papers are, strictly speaking, a sort of ledger for each head and sub-head of account in which are posted the items credited to that head from time to time. This was a device to check the awarcha accounts supplied by various departments of the Government.

The new system of more correctly the changes introduced in Sambat 1872, synchronize with the date of employment of Diwan George Bann in the finance Department of the Lahore State. Diwan George Bann himself and his father before him had held high posts in Delhi under the Moghal Government. He had acquired special experience in that line and it may be presumed that the Diwan was responsible for these improvements.*

The Heads of Departments were required to send their official papers to the office of the Diwan for his inspection. His office was in a way an office for Public Records, and here these papers were stored each in its proper place. The accounts, i.e., stah, roznam'ina and jam' kharch papers submitted by Heads of Departments, were all examined and checked and, in certain cases, probably compiled in an abstract form for permanent official use and reference.

The papers that were sent to the Diwan's office from the several departments were those relating to--

- (1) na'adgah—Collection of land revenue from districts.
- (2) warad—Collection of revenues from customs.
- (3) vajvaid—Collection of revenues from excise, etc.
- (4) narar'ana—Collection of the fixed annual tributes, fines and presents.

- (5) kahkildars—Government funds and other State transactions.
- (6) ibiy'a—Purchases of things for general use.
- (7) kirya—Fare of conveyances hired for Government business.
- (8) zakhshat—Transactions regarding the purchase and consumption of military stores.
- (9) ratib—Purchase and consumption of fodder, etc., for Government stables.
- (10) maudgib—Payment of salaries made to the various branches of the army and civil establishments, or amla.
- (11) madid kharch—Payments of political pensions and the ladies' apartments.
- (12) sikh vandanacha—Details of payments made from the treasury as well as the cheques or cash orders on the district treasuries or on tahsildars, etc.
- (13) audarcha—The audarcha papers of certain heads of expenditure whose jami kharch account is not found among papers from Nos. 1 to 12 in the above list. It may be that these heads were grouped in one department and the officer in charge was responsible directly to the Mahārāja. These were the following:—
- (a) in'am (rewards).
- (b) tanhaj (presents).
- (c) khil'at (robes of honour).
- (d) dharmna-th (charity).
- (e) itigat (gifts).
- (vi) maqarrariyat (fixed annuities).
- (vii) sarf-i-huzur (Mahārāja's personal expenditure).
- (viii) zayafat (entertainment).
- (ix) rakhasdana (some cash given at the time of departure).
- (x) hajarat (grant of land, etc.).
- (xi) musad'adat (advances of money).
- (xii) vaz musad'adat (recovery of advances).

The details given above will enable us to form a general idea of the position and duties of the Diwān. It appears that this high functionary for the most part kept in his own hands the threads of all revenue collection and expenditure. The papers relating to almost all transactions and payments in all departments of the State were submitted to him for inspection. How much of the sanction and criticism of the budgets or actuals submitted by several departments was allowed him by the Mahārāja we do not know. This much at least is certain, that, under the Mahārāja's Government, the functions and duties of the officials were not definitely and clearly laid down and that the exercise of the powers of an office varied with the personal ability, tact and judgment of the man holding that office. In the Court of Ranjit Singh who was surrounded mostly by the representatives of the middle class, a literat was a farang and the various incumbents of the post of darogah, namely Bhawani Dās, Ganga Rām and Dina Nath, enjoyed the Mahārāja's confidence to a fairly high degree.

Among his other duties the Diwān was required to read out the reports of his department daily to the Mahārāja in the afternoon (5 p.m. to 6 p.m.) and obtain orders from him. These orders were frequently noted on the margin of the papers and instructions issued to the officer concerned.

No orders of the Government regarding appointments and grants of iqbal, etc., could take effect, or were regarded valid, unless they bore the Diwān's seal under the technical phrase shahid kar (entered in the books). As may be seen from the above list, he was the custodian of almost all the official records, and, as such, practically controlled the whole of the administrative machinery. It was this position and his intimate knowledge of the financial affairs that rendered Diwān Dina Nath indispensable to the early British administrators for some time after the annexation of the Panjāb in 1849. Next to the Prime Minister, on the administrative side, the Diwān was the highest functionary.

After this brief outline sketch of the departmental organization of the Government and the position and duties of the diwān, a word regarding the method of compilation of accounts and their audit may also be deemed necessary.

In the system of Persian accounts, the amounts are denoted by certain signs called raqams. In these raqams, the highest figure is shown at the top, the next lower figure represents the smaller amount and so on.

The account books are technically called kalhas jam' kharch. The usual form of these jam' kharch papers or statement of accounts was this: the items of receipt or those credited to a particular head from time to time were brought together and shown in one place under the technical name *minfarida**; the items of disbursement, expenditure or those debited to this head were indicated in the second part of the statement, technically called *mizāzīl**; and the third or the last part of this statement was headed as *bāzā**, showing the balance or the remainder.

In each of the three parts of a statement, the grand total is indicated at the top and the details are noted below. Each item of these details is shown under its appropriate head and is also supported by a précis of the voucher or authority.

The departments sent their accounts to the Diwān's office in the above form, where they were examined and checked with the records in his office. These records, as already pointed out, consisted of (a) roznamcha and (b) awarcha.

Every item of receipt or expenditure, whether in cash or cheque, was posted in the roznamcha immediately it was received, sanctioned or actually paid. The roznamcha nazis was required to send his daily report to the Diwān's office. Here these items were sorted and each posted in its place in the awarcha or ledger. Each head and sub-head of account had an awarcha (ledger) devoted to it. The awarchas both of the heads of receipts and expenditure were generally drawn in the name of the individual officer responsible for them, although for certain kinds of expenditure (in'am, ziyāfat, etc.), the awarchas were prepared only in the name of the heads of accounts.

This device certainly facilitated the work of auditing and checking the statement of accounts submitted by an officer. The minfarida section of the statement submitted by him could be compared with his awarcha in the Diwān's office, showing the items credited to his name from time to time, and any omission or mistake in the statement thus submitted could be easily detected. As a result of this, the Government was mainly concerned with the correctness of the amount credited to a particular officer or head of account, because the officer in charge was himself equally interested in the satisfactory disposal of that amount. He was required to show the debit items, arranged in distinct groups of *tanzimat-hat*, tahsilat, gubuzat, faraidishahs* and izhar. The payments or debts under these heads could be easily verified from either the roznamcha papers or from the awarcha of individual heads to which the amount was shown as debited. No tanzimat parwana or cheque could be valid until duly signed or verified by the Diwān, hence the items shown under this head could not easily avoid detection. The amount debited under the tahsilat head must be acknowledged and owned by the tahsilatdar to whom it was shown to be transferred. The gubuzat and arshadat expenses were to be necessarily supported by vouchers, while those debited as izhar were verified from the original sanctions in the Diwān's office.

* tanzimat (plural tanzimats)—order on the treasury for the payment of a stipend salary, etc.

gubuzat (from gab)—receipt or voucher.

faraidishah (plural of faraidah)—order or com. This denotes the direct orders from the Wazir. One attested copy of such order was kept in the office with which the items shown under this head were checked.

izhar is a statement. This item of expenditure usually occurs on the debit side of disbursements shown in the papers submitted by the revenue collectors. It stands for expenditures incurred in connection with the establishment of the Collector's Office, etc. This item was allowed by comparison with the originals sanctioned by the Government.

SUMMARY CATALOGUE.

Part I of the volume deals with bundles relating to Har-i-mad, from Sambat 1868 to 1906 (1811—1843 A. D.). These two relate only to the roznamcha papers for the year Umbat 1894, 1896 and 1897 in one, and 1898, 1899 and 1900 the other.

As to the remaining bundles, ordinarily there is one bundle for each calendar year with the exception of the Sambat years 02, 1903, 1904 and 1905, to each of which more than one bundle is devoted. For 1902 and 1903 there are two bundles for 2d year, for 1904 there are three and for 1905 there are four bundles. As to the arrangement of papers in each, reference may be made to the remarks prefaced to the description of each bundle in the body of the volume.

Bundle No. B. 1.—Total folios 2,217; size 5" X 7½"; written shikasta.

Official in charge.—Diwan Bhawāni Dās.

Date.—Sambat 1868 (1811 A. D.).

Contents.—The bundle contains the accounts of receipts from various sources of revenue and the expenditure incurred by several branches of Government for the year Sambat 1811. The papers have been arranged under following principal heads:—

(a) sarfi-wazai—

(1) arbab-ul-mal.

(2) arbab-ul-tal-wil-o-lahisti.

(3) sarfi-sani.

(iii) lawihati—

(a) akhr-ghati.

(b) naqadghat.

(iv) roznamcha.

Remarks.—From the revenue rolls of the year under consideration it appears the fort of Kussak, Karangli, and the district of Gujrat and the Nakka ry were recently annexed to the Kingdom of Lahore. Another interesting incident of the year under consideration is, the celebration of Prince Ak Singh's wedding.

* This is another name of Amritsar and was so called after the name of its founder Bārrān, a Hindu of the Sikhs. Gurū Rām Dās is said to have been held in esteem by Akbar, and to have been granted a piece of land within the limits of which he dug a reservoir, since well known as the Amritsar or the pool of immortality, but the temples and the surrounding huts were at first built by Akbar from the foundation. (Page 81, Cunningham's History of the Sikhs).

† This denotes the depot salt. The salt mine or more exactly the depot near the mine known by the name of Amritsar, the Moghal days. The probable origin for this name may be traced to the tradition recorded in the Gazetteer of the Jhelum District, page 17, which states that the salt was first discovered by certain Asad Khān, on condition of his giving the Government a certain sum equal to the whole of the wages of the miners employed in digging it. It is very likely that the place which after the discovery of the salt mine has developed into a considerable market town may have been known as mandvi (of mandi after Asad Khān who discovered the place).

‡ Rājūt Singh had inherited the salt mine from his grandfather Sardar Charat Singh, and probably on this ground the ex-Maharaja Dalip Singh and his family subsequently took legal claim upon themselves in England to endow it to recover salt mine as a family heritage.

At-tahsil is plural of tahsil which means that which is obtained or received. The at in Arabic is a particle of determination, and is equivalent to the definite article "the" in English. The papers arranged under the above head relate to the following sources of receipts:—

The country that lies between the Ravi and the Sutlej in the south of Lahore District was known as the Nakka Country. The word nakka means border edge. One of the Sikh confederates whose possessions lay in this territory was called the Nakka mīst. Ranjit Singh's first and principal wife Rani Rāj Kaur (popularly known as mī Nakka) was the daughter of Sandar Ran Singh, Chief of the Nakka mīst. This alliance, however, did the Nakka Chief no good, because Ranjit Singh, on obtaining power, subdued the mīst and seized all the possessions in 1810.

* I have not been able to identify or locate this place—may be somewhere in Pindt Bhettá in the district of Gujranwála.

† The fort of Gobindgarh in Amritsar was built by Ranjit Singh in Sambat 1864 (1807—08). It was in this fort that the treasure and jewellery of the State were deposited. It was strongly garrisoned and remained under the charge of Faqir Imam, and Dín for a very long time.

‡ Tambol is a marriage present. The practice of receiving such presents in cash on the occasion of weddings of their sons and daughters is very common among Indian parents. The tambol in question refers to the cash presents received on the occasion of the marriage of Prince Kharak Singh. The heir-apparent Kharak Singh was married to Bibi Chand Kaur, the only daughter of Sardar Jaimal Singh Kanha of Pothohar, in the district of Gurdaspur. The wedding took place on 20th Mangh 1868 (6th February 1812). Among the distinguished guests were Colonel David Ochterlony, Ríjés of Nabha and Jind and the agents from the King of Kábul, Nawáb of Multán, Mankeas and Kashmir, etc. Lahors and Amritsar were the scenes of great rejoicing and feasting for several days.

The details of the amount of the tambol as given in these papers are as follows:—

(1) Kishtá, comprising the chiefs of the Kangra Valley, Rs. 50,000; (ii) to'atá i. e. comprising districts under the direct rule of the Mahásájo, Rs. 36,775; (iii) Sardáre Rs. 1,06,300; (iv) Army, Rs. 28,407-8-6; (v) ghoshtá Rs. 16,000; (vi) Bankers, etc., Rs. 3,050; Jalandhar, Rs. 1,100; Shamsher Ali, Rs. 105, total Rs. 2,36,087. The details under Sardáre contain Rs. 5,000 from Colonel Ochterlony.

Bundle No. B 2.—Total folios 2,519; size 5" X 7½"; written in shikasta.

Official in charge.—Diván Bhaváni Dás.

Date.—Sambhat 1869 (1812 A. D).

Contents.—The bundle contains the accounts of revenue receipts from various sources of income and the expenditure incurred by different branches of Government in the year 1812. The papers in the bundle have been arranged in the following order:—

- (a) sar'i-awwal—
  - (1) ar'dab-ul-mal;
  - (2) ar'dab-ul-tahwil-o-lakh sh.
- (aa) sar'i-i-sana.
- (ab) khajiháb—
  - (a) alderdik;
  - (b) manújsh.
- (ac) " "

NOTE.—The roznamcha papers for Sambhat 1869 are not forthcoming.

Remarks.—The year under consideration witnessed the addition to the Kingdom of Lahore of a slice of territory comprising the districts of Tádgarh, Bureidala, Jaimal Singh, Fatehgarh, Mirthal, Nangal and Narot. These districts belonged to the Kanhya misl, but on the death of Sardár Jaimal Singh early in Sambhat 1869, were annexed by Ranjit Singh—the remaining possessions of the misl being still held by Ráni Suda Kaur, mother-in-law of the Maharaja.

Bundle No. B. 3—Total folio 2,321; size 5" x 7 1/2"; written in shikasta.

Official in charge.—Divān Bhawāni Dās.

Date.—Sambhat 1870 (1813 A. D.).

Contents.—The bundle contains the accounts of revenue receipts from various sources of income and expenditure incurred by different branches of Government in the year 1813. The papers in the bundle have been arranged in the following order:—

- (a) sarf-i-awwal—
  - (1) arḥāb-ul-māl.
  - (2) arḥā'-n-t-tāhōṭī.
- (i) sarf-i-āzmi.
- (ii) tanjīhāt—
  - (a) alḥarājāt.
  - (b) manājīb.

NOTE.—The roznamcha papers for Sambhat 1870 are not forthcoming.

Remark 2.—In the year 1813 Ranjit Singh obtained or rather extorted the famous Diamond Koh-i-nūr from Shah Shāhāh-ul-Mulk in fulfillment of the promise which the Shah's queen had made to him to the effect that if he succeeded in restoring to her the person of her husband who was a captive in Kashmir, she would present him the famous diamond.

The year under consideration also witnessed the recapture of the fort of Attock by Ranjit Singh. News of the expulsion of his brother from Kashmir by Fateh Khān Wariz and also of the latter's intentions to march against Attock, disquieted its Governor Jahan Dād Khān who sought protection from Ranjit Singh and on being persuaded surrendered the fort of Attock to the Maharaja. Ranjit Singh purchased the good will of the garrison by paying about one lac of rupees as their arrears of pay and instantly ordered his own troops to occupy the fort (vide pages 137-89, after II, Sohan Lal).

Bundle No. B. 4.—Total folios 2,697; size 5" × 7½", written in shikasta.

Official in charge.—Diyān Bhawāni Dās.

Date.—Sambāt 1871 (1814 A. D.).

Contents.—The bundle contains the accounts of revenue receipts from various sources of income and expenditure incurred by different branches of Government in the year 1814. The papers in the bundle have been arranged in the following order:—

- (1) sarf-i-awwal—
 (1) arḥāb-ni-mā'
 (2) arḥāb-ul-lahawīl.

(2) sarf-i-sarā'i.

(3) tarīkhāt—

- (a) akhrājāt
 (1) muwājib.

NOTE.—The rozānāma papers for Sambāt 1870 are not forthcoming.

Remarks.—In the year Sambāt 1870 some improvement is noticed in the method of keeping records as well as in the working of the system of ministerial details. The work was now more appropriately divided into branches. The minor sources of revenue which in the records of the previous years, were all combined in one group under the head sarf-i-sarā'i are henceforth re-classified. The sources from which the annual proceeds were fixed, regular and recurring, were ranked with the land revenue and as such were transferred to the general head of sarf-i-awwal with sub-heads of sarf-ul-wajūh and wajūhāt, etc., and the remaining were being still treated as extra or sarf-i-sarā'i.

† Fatehgarh was previously held in jāgir by Sardar Gaur Singh, Dhāri. In Sambāt 1871 Gaur Singh was not only deprived of this jāgir, but had to suffer a considerable loss by the cessation of his privately hoarded wealth. Among the property confiscated were gold and silver ornaments valued at rupees 2,125, the gold valued at Rs. 15 per toke and silver at Rs. 90 per toke.

‡ The district of Wazīrābad was placed under Regt. Nar-n-Din from Sambāt 1871. The limits of the district were extended and the Faris changed.

Bundle No. 5.—Total folios 1,723; size 5" X 7½"; written in shikasta.

Official in charge.—Dīwān Bhawāni Dās.

Date.—Sambat 1872 (1913 A. D.).

Contents.—The bundle contains the accounts of receipts and expenditure of the Government for the year Sambat 1872. The papers have been arranged under the following principal heads:—

- (i) mātyāt.
- (ii) khawālah.
- (iii) salākhānah.
- (iv) marājīb.

(2) roznamcha
(26) roznamcha.

Ramartia.—In our remarks pertaining to the papers of the previous year we referred to certain improvements made in the methods of keeping official records, etc. The year under consideration witnessed further changes. These changes synchronize with the appointment of Diván Ganga Rám as the head of the military darfar. They reveal, as will be noticed from the following pages, a re-organization of the darfars.

There is also noticed a tendency to simplification of the old system which was introduced by Diván Bhawáni Dás, lately an officer in the Finance Department of the Kábul Government. The heads and sub-heads are not so technical as one finds in the account books of the previous years. They are now denoted by simple and brief titles. The akádris and adidat or Customs Department were now regularly organized as we will have occasions to point out later on.

N.R.—The Kohistán or mountainous tracts do not form a separate sitar or saba, as they were shown in the papers of the previous years.

**dar-ul-zar'* was the mint from dar (rouse) and zar' (coin), i.e., the place where the coin was struck. The title of the papers is, however, misleading. The receipts shown in these papers are receipts from addat. It is evidently a clerical mistake and the words dar-ul-zar' should be read dar-ul-addat.

Remarks.—The revenue papers of Sambāt 1873 reveal the annexation to the Kingdom of Lahore, of the possessions of the Rāmgarhīa māl. This māl was one of the most powerful of the Sikh confederacies in the latter half of the eighteenth century. Ranjīt Singh, who was rapidly gaining in power, began to covet the territory of these Sardārs but, not feeling strong enough to break its power during the lifetime of its Chief Jodh Singh, now seized upon his possessions on his death in 1816 A.D., allowing a small maintenance grant to his sons. The possessions of this māl lay on both sides of the river Beās and brought a revenue from six to seven lacs of rupees per annum.

* This ta'aluqa appears in the revenue accounts for the first time in the year Sambat 1874-75. It was conquered and annexed much earlier. The district was formed out of Diwán Baháwal Dás for Rs. 1,00,000 per annum. Here we notice a jághir of the value of Rs. 4,000 per annum granted to Mán Guláb Singh subsequently known as Káñ Guláb Singh, and then the Maharája Guláb Singh of Jammu and Kashmir.

† Chhachht plain centres about Harro and contains the most fertile and richest portion of the Attock District. The fort of Attock and the territory around it was taken under direct management in Sambat 1870 as it lay on the road to Pesháwar. The acquisition of Chhachht was rendered imperative for the safety of the fort.

‡ This includes the revenue accounts of three districts, namely, Soháñ, Sháhpur, Kasrys and Dnda which were farmed to one Suláhe Sháh.

§ This ta'aluqa of an annual value of Rs. 23,000 was formerly held in jághir by the troops of irregular cavalry. Hence it appears for the first time in the revenue rolls of Sambat 1875.

¶ This ta'aluqa too was previously held in jághir by the troops.

¶ Sirí Hargobindpurá was the chief town or capital of the principality of the Kingship of Lahore in Sambat 1873 and continued to appear in these rolls as Kálik Ráñg 17½ were henceforth denominated as paraganá Sirí Hargobindpurá.

** Lala Sukh Dáil and Lala Káma Nánd jointly held the farm of Customs Department. In the previous year these accounts appeared under the name of Lala Sukh Dáil.

* This includes the tribute money from the hill States, namely Parohli, Chamba, Jaserota Mandi, Kula, Sake, etc.

† ghāzr māqarrarī literally means not fixed or assessed. This class of nazāra consisted of fardal aide paid by jāgīrdārs or fees charged on the grant or renewal of a jāgīr and other items, etc.

‡ These are interesting papers, showing the probable budget for the year, i.e., the amount to be realized both as a part of the land revenue and the tribute money which is estimated at Rs. 6,59,134. Some papers appear to be missing in this series.

*Navāb Sar Afrāz Khān was the son of Navāb Muzaffar Khān, the late ruler of Multān. Muzaffar Khān with his 5 sons fell fighting in a hand-to-hand fight with the Sikhs. Sar Afrāz Khān and his brother Zulqār Khān were made prisoners and brought to Lahore where they were granted a political pension of an annual value of Rs. 30,000.

†These waklās were the representatives of the several independent chiefs resident at the court of Lahore, namely, those of Manikern, Bahawalpur, Peshawar and Kashmir.

Official-in-charge.—(Name not given).

Date.—Sambāt 1875-76 (1818-19 A.D.)

Contents.—The papers in the bundle have been arranged in the following order:—

- (i) māl.
 (ii) zakhīrājāt.
 (iii) masājīb.
 (iv) miscellaneous.

Remarks.—The papers relating to Multan in the previous years reveal that Ranjit Singh had gradually drained the resources of the Nawab by enforcing his annual demands for the azarāna or tribute money. He had invaded the province as many as seven times between 1802 and 1818, when in Jeth 1875 (June 1818), the citadel finally fell into his hands after a protracted siege of nearly four months. The news reached Lahore on the 26th Jeth 1875 and the whole city was ordered to be illuminated in honour of the victory and the Maharaja himself riding on an elephant passed through the main bazār showering rupees on the way as he proceeded.

The papers arranged in this bundle cover the revenue account of the Province during the governorship of Diwan Jetha Ram (Rabi 1875), Lala Sakh Dial (Kharif 1875—Rabi 1876) and Diwan Sham Singh (Kharif 1876).

<sup>2</sup> Folio 26th is missing. On account of the heavy bombardment during the siege there were caused several breaches in the fort and several of the bastions and parapets were dismantled. The work of repair and construction of the new buildings in the fort was taken in hand immediately after its occupation. From a short note on folio 2(e) of this series of papers, it appears that a formal entry in to the fort was made on the 14th Har 1875—although the construction and repair work was started on the first of that month. The total expenditure on the buildings is shown at Rs. 38,284-11-6 from 1st Har 1875 to Bhadon 1876.

Bundle No 10.—Total folios 3,574; size 5" X 7½"; written in shikasta.

Official in charge.—Díván Dína Náth.

Date.—Sambal 1877 (1820 A. D.).

Contents.—The contents of the bundle have been arranged under the following principal heads:—

- (i) mál.
- (ii) ta'aluqát.
- (iii) zakhirát.
- (iv) manáfiq.
- (v) rozánámcha.
- (vi) awácrícha.

Remarks.—Having annexed Multan and Kashmir successively in the two preceding years, Ranjit Singh now turned his attention to the Trans-Indos dependencies of the Kabul Government. In Sambal 1877 he seized the district of Dera Ghazi Khan, expelled its Afghan Governor and farmed out the district to the Nawab of Bahawalpur for an annual rental of Rs. 4,50,000.

<sup>1</sup> The territory round Rawalpindi formed the possessions of Sardar Milkha Singh. Theprits, once the most powerful of the Sikh chiefs. On his death in 1804, his son Jivan Singh yielded to the rising power of Ranjit Singh and consented to fight under his banner. Jivan Singh himself died in 1815, and was succeeded by his son Nand Singh who was crowned in his presence. But soon after, the Mahārāja's designs of having a more direct control over Rawalpindi on account of its strategic position, commanding as it did the North-Western route into India, annexed the territory of Nand Singh to the kingdom of Lahore.

<sup>2</sup> This tā'āḡāḡā of an annual value of Rs. 15,000 in the Jhelum District, was granted to one Sartar Jamlat Singh Kanhananghla.

<sup>3</sup> This tā'āḡāḡā of about Rs. 60,000 annual value was previously held in ijāḡir by the Sardar Jai Singh, Aharivāla, but since Rabi 1879 was granted in ijāḡir to Sardar Bakh Singh, Sindhanwāla.

<sup>4</sup> The *tā'āḡāḡā*s of Wāḡā (Bakala), Kāḡānū, Mokerān, etc., formed possessions of the Kanhaya misl represented by Māt Sālā Kaur, mother-in-law of Ranjit Singh. Her territory was confiscated in 1878 and as a result of that these *tā'āḡāḡā*s formed into a separate district and annexed to the Lahore Kingdom.

Remarks.—Having gained the Indus for a frontier in the preceding years, Ranjit Singh now determined to advance it to the Sulman Range itself. In Sambāt 1877 he expelled the Nawab of Dera Ghazi Khan and gave his territory in fann to Nawab of Bahawalpur. A couple of years later we notice Nawab Hattiz Ahmad of Mankera holding Dera Ismail Khan in Jāgīr from the Maharaja. In 1880 Ranjit Singh again crossed the Indus, at the head of a large force, marched through Isakhel without opposition, and pushed on to the outskirts of Banuu, and after fixing a satrazā or tribute to be paid annually into the Khalsa Exchequer, retired without planting a garrison in the country. The year under consideration also witnessed the famous battle of Navshetra, fought between the Sikhs and Sardar Azim Khan of Kabul. The result was that Peshawar, the only remaining trans-Indus dependency of the Kabul Government, also felt the weight of the Sikh arm.

Remarks.—

The papers in this bundle are in a very bad condition and a large number of these is missing. From what one finds by looking at the sheets that are preserved, it appears that this bundle was badly damaged by damp and white ants, and that such papers as were wholly damaged were either destroyed or it was not thought safe to keep them in the bundle.

* Kapurthala and the adjoining territory formed one of the twelve chiefships into which the Sikhs divided the Punjab amongst themselves in the last quarter of the 15th century. It was known as the Ahruvalá mizál. The head of the chiefship, Sardar Fateh Singh, Ahluwálá, was, in the beginning of his career, a friend and ally of Ranjit Singh, but, being of a weak and yielding nature, was rapidly ousted in the race for power and in the end found himself in the position of a feudatory of the Lahore Government. Ranjit Singh not only not interfered with his territory, but added to his ancestral possessions. But in Sambat 1883, owing to some misunderstanding between them, Sardar Fateh Singh fled across the Sutlej and took refuge to some of the British. The result was that the Maharaja confiscated his entire territory. But, as there was no real cause for Sardar Fateh Singh's apprehensions, a reconciliation was soon brought about and his territory was soon restored to him. Under the revenue collectors of the Maharaja this territory was assessed at nine lacs per annum.

* Motī Mandir was the name given to the Motī Masjid in the fort of Lahore. This mosque is built of white marble and was used as a place for offering prayers by the Muhammadan emperors. Mandir is Hindi word for Masjid or mosque. Rangit Singh converted it into treasury room for containing cash.

† Hārān was the governor of Jaserāh. These papers contain an account of the collection and disbursement of revenue of Jaserāh, etc.
